DOUGLAS JERROLD'S WITH

'errold's wit was of the keenest and most transparent character, like Sidney Smith's wit, like all true wit; for genuine wit is the same all the world over. "Wit gives you a nud in pass. ing; but with humor you are at home." You must be on the alert for wit; it ilashes, and is gone. "Take a walk upon an empty stomach," gone. "Take a wait upon an entroy your said the doctor to Sidney Smith, "Upon whose?" asked the Dean. That is wit. So is Tom Houd's description of a fellow whose height of folly constituted his own monument:

"A specimen column top, to A highthouse, without only light a top."

So was Sidney Smith's reply to the church wardens, when they wanted a wood pavement round St. Paul's: "Lay your heads togother and the thing is done;" while his remark to a little. chile who was sciatching a tortoise, that it was like scratching the dome of St. Paul's to please the Dean sud Chapter, is a line example of per-fect hunor. The wit of errold is often e-just to that of the Hean, and many a brilliant saying is attributed to both of them. A score of stories of errold occur to me, though it is too late to ade any new ones to the record, for his "wit and have been carefully collected and pubhished. There are a few good things, however, which will hear repetition. "Then Nature must have had a very had pen," was the prompt reply. Everybody knows how he revenged houself upon a pompous fop, who had made houself offensively conspicuous, at a club donner where sheep's head was a favorite dish. Pushing his plate andle, the stranger ex-claimed, "Well, I say, sheep schead forever?" "What egotism" remarked errol l. This, no doubt, led up to a landred thish of with an anginer occasion, at the expense of a literary friend of errold's, who had just ordered "Some sheep's tail soup, waner," "Ah!" said errold, booking up, and smiling with his great eyes, "extremes meet sometimes." There was an old gendeman who drove a very slow pony in a ramshickle gig, and he was unstone one day to pay corold. a little special attention. AN OUR GOOSE.

Uney I coper, writing from Paris to Applican-There has been a great deal of talk about cen ennials and cemenarisos recently, but they have all been t frown into the shade by an incividual who recently departed this life in Paris aged two belonging to a workman named 'ayen, who resided at Villeneuve Saint George. It had been in the possession of the family for over two cen turies, as certain documents in the hands of the present owner conclusively proved. It was caller Babette, and knew its name per ectly, always coming when called by it. For three years wast it has been in a semi-lethargic condition, but up to that time it had been lively and preserved good appearance. The director of the arcin ces Plantes, tearing of the existence of this ven-erable fowl, caused it to be purchased. The fatigues of a journey to "aris were too much for a constitution enfectical by two centuries of existence, and Babette expired in a few hours after her arrival at her new home. She is to be stuffed and installed with all honors in the museum attached to the garcens.
